The WALTHER P99 pistol is a magazine fed, semi-automatic pistol utilizing an internal striker system to fire the cartridge. Being absent of an external hammer and the slide having a smooth contour abates the pistol from snagging on clothing when concealed. The open post sights of the P99 are designed for rapid aiming and target acquisition.

Development. In May 1980, the company was invited to bid on a contract to supply the Austrian military with a new duty pistol to replace the World War II-era Walther P38 service pistol. Samples were submitted for assessment trials and, after passing all of the exhaustive endurance and abuse tests, Glock emerged as the winner with the Glock 17 model. The handgun was adopted into service with ...
